

Sometimes I drift limply in the dark sea of thoughts I see my face reflections in the bright moonlight but the storm always comes and in the tempestuous insidious sea

I can hardly decide which of the million faces truly reflects me